The many friends of Esther

Ralston, the young movie actress who was graduated from Glendale

High and who has a large acquaintance here, will be relieved to learn that she was not burned in the fire which occurred Tuesday at Universal City in which William Desmond and an actress playing a vampire part, were injured. Esther had been playing opposite Desmond in a series entitled "The Phantom Fortune," but at the time of the fire was not on the set but was reading Shakespeare to Louis Sargent.

The report stating Esther had been injured came out in a Los Angeles evening paper and the first news Mrs. Ralston had of it was when a friend called her by telephone. Esther's brothers were getting ready to go to Universal City to see what had happened to their sister when she walked in nervous and excited but unhurt.

She will soon be seen on the screen at the T., D. & L. Theatre in this city in the character of Rose Maylie in "Oliver Twist." She is much interested in Shakespeare

Plan to Solve the

WATSON

ONSIDERABLE gratifithe citizens of Glendale on learning that the sewer problem will probably be solved within a short time.

Five different plans were submitted to the city council by J. P. Lippincott, the engineer who was employed by the city council to study over the sewer situation.

One of these plans, with some modification, was presented yester-day by a joint committee repre-senting the city council and the chamber of commerce, to the Los Angeles city council. If this proposition is accepted by point on San Fernando road be-tween Colorado and Los Feliz to either the intersection of Macy and Mission or Sixth and Anderson streets, Los Angeles, a distance of about seven miles. At one of these two intersections it could be connected with the Los Angeles out-fall trunk line sewer to the sea.

IN consideration of the granting of this request, Glendale proposes to permit those sections of Los Angeles through which the sewer runs to be connected with it. water Park, Angelus Park and several other new tracts which have been recently built up, and where the sewer problem is acute.

The capacity of the proposed sewer will be such as to enable some of the San Fernando valley cities to be taken care of.

This sewer problem is a serious business for Glendale. It is the most serious problem that has ever confronted us. It not only affects our growth, but is liable to become a menace to public health. It means day, but it will mean everything to The scores stood: Cerritos, 74 3-20; the Glendale of the future.

WE are to be congratulated over Acacia juniors, 104. the fact that both civic bodies of Glendale—our city council and the chamber of commerce—have joined hands and are working together for the benefit of our city as a whole. It is the duty of every citizen to get behind this proposi-tion and lend all possible assistance and influence. This committee went into Los Angeles with a friendly hand clasp, not with a club, and with a spirit of give and take, and in consequence has made friends for with the Los Angeles city council.

The city officials of Los Angeles should recognize the fact that the continuation of cesspools Glendale will eventually, if it has not already done it, contaminate the water supply of Los Angeles. There is danger of seepage from the cesspools of Glendale entering the channels supplying the intakes of the Los Angeles water system.

IF for no other reason than selfprotection, the Los Angeles of ficials ought to realize the advisability of joining with us in solving

It is estimated that the cost of constructing this sewer will be approximately $800;000. While this is a large amount, the fact that it will solve the sewer problem in Glendale for all time will justify the expenditure of this sum.

As it has been reiterated in the Glendale Daily Press, the increase of the registration will interfere with the plans of the annexationists, who must have 25 per cent of the total registration on their petitions when they present them to the city council for an election call. The more the registration increases, the more difficult it would be to call an election.

The list of registrars printed below has increased by two over the previous list. Miss Myrtle B. BIG LEAGUERS AT GRAVE IN HAWAII OF OLD-TIME BASEBALL ORGANIZER

While completing a 10,000-mile tour of the Orient, major league baseball players stopped at Hawaii and placed a wreath on the grave of Alexander Joy Cartwright, organizer years ago of the Knickerbocker baseball club of New York. He was buried in the Nuuanu cemetery. After starting organized baseball in New York, Cartwright went west overland in '49, spreading the fame of the game as he went. He died in Hawaii in 1892. In the group is Sanford B. Dole (with white whiskers), who spoke at the ceremonies. He was first president of the Hawaiian republic in 1894, prior to the annexation of the islands by the United States. He played baseball with Cartwright in the early '50's. At the extreme left is Herb Pennock, pitcher, recently purchased by the New York Yankees. Fourth from the left is Waite Hoyt, Yankee pitcher. At the extreme right is Amos Strunk of the White Sox.

'MY WILD IRISH ROSE' AT THE GLENDALE THEATER

"My Wild Irish Rese," the big Vitagraph special adapted from the amous stage success by Dion Boucicault of bygone days, will be shown at the Glendale theater to night.

"My Wild Irish Rose" was directed by David Smith and makes the third special production filmed under his direction which has a for-eign country for its locale. The first was "Black Beauty," with its scenes laid in rural England; the second was the "Little Minister," with its action in and about the town of Thrums, Scotland, and now "My Wild Irish Rose," with color-ful Ireland as the background with a few scenes laid in Australia and on the famous prison ships of the period of the story. Vitagraph is confident that the now production is a worthy completion of the trio.

The recent agitation of the Irish question and the formation of the Irish Free State has given added mpetus to the always present in terest in the much-discussed island and its struggle for freedom, and President Albert E. Smith of Vita-graph believes that a big, spectacular special production with the cause of Ireland for its theme, the romantic and picturesque mountains and lakes of the Emerald Isle for the backgrounds and two engrossing love stories intertwined. s more than timely—really an inis more than timely—really an inspiration, and neither time nor money has been spared to make the photoplay as perfect as human hands and ingenuity can make it.

BREAD FROM STONES

lived for three years. They have sold their home at 427 Salem. Hello, radio friends! I have old you something as to how our Their address in Long Beach will be 442 Newport, just north of Fourth and a block east of soils were formed from the rocks which made up the "dry land" in he beginning; how through hundreds of centuries of decay this great rock surface was broken up into the small stones that go to make up our present soil. Now I am going to tell you something Miss Dorothy Wright, teacher o dancing, will give a pupils' recital more about these stones and how at the Curran Studio of Music, 214 we get our bread from them.

The stones that make up our soils are of a great many sizes. Some are large like boulders and ployed in Glendale, has accepted a position at the Aldridge barber-shop, 144 S. Brand so small that the grains can scarcely be seen with the naked eye. Still finer than sand is the silt, the small particles of which are so small as to require a microscope to be seen; and finally clay, the finest particles of all, some of which are so small that they can not be seen even with the strongest miscroscope. Our soil is usually made up of a mixture of two or more of these materials, such as sand, silt and clay, and is usually called a loam. But, you say, bread from that stuff would only be mud pies. But wait; we are not yet ready to make our bread. I must tell you more about these stones. They are made up of many different minerals and contain such elements as phosphorus, calcium, which we call lime; potassium or potash, iron, sulfur, etc., which we know as plant foods. Just as the pig or the calf uses carbohydrates and proteins as food, so the plant uses the phosphorus, potassium, ealcium, CARROTS 18 INCHES etc., which are a part of the stony or mineral portion of the soil as

But, you say, the plant surely does not eat these stones. Now there was a time, about two hun- GGG PLANT 3 FEET, dred years ago, when men thought this to be true. THE WISDOM OF KING SOLOMON

King Solomon had, perhaps, more intimate knowledge of women than any man in history. His fund of information, of course, was based upon the personal experi-ences of his household, but not even his judgment of women was infallible. When he spoke of the ways of a maid he drew in a deep breath, spoke slowly and selected his words carefully. Solomon was

He had a philosophy which made it easy for him to bear ordinary troubles. In his most contented moments he regarded his wives as assets. The fact that he was sucessful in preserving the peace of his home is accepted as convincing proof of his wisdom and tact. A pedagogic attitude would have cramped his style.

Solomon, however, never posed as an authority on the subject of women. By the nature of his matwomen. By the nature of his mat-rimonial career and experiences he had some right to speak with as-surance, but he never hammered a table to drive home a fine point. He always felt there was a possibility he might be wrong.

Wherefore I am very much surmake themselves a little too obvi- girls ous by going in for sports. His argument is that the modern type of athletic girl faces the less of Radio Broadcast from the State and establishes with men a rough | Some of us don't even know our fellowship which raises a veil on own minds.

the mystery of marriage. He perceives an element of danger to the sex in the coat of tan which she wears, and by way of proof he says we all know a girl who spends seven or eight hours a day in the open air and converts herself from pallid prettiness into brawniness, sunburn, and a not altogether disagreeable coarseness.

Personally I know no girl who possesses all these specifications. I know of several who have achieved prominence on the tennis court, n the golf links, and in the swimming tank. But I also know some young men who have more than an academic and platonic interest in the young ladies. The young men are all alert and intelligent, but by no stretch of their healthy imagina. tions are they able to believe their athletic friends are "a litle too obvious." As a mater of fact, they will not admit the girls are even plain obvious.

I am quite convinced that a man cannot speak with authority about women or girls. Solomon, in his wisdom, established a precedent. Femininity is a subject which de fies psychological analysis. It is one of the mysteries of human na ture. If a strong body makes a strong mind, the Englishman has prised when I read that a certain less right to say that athletic girls Englishman has said that girls are more obvious than unathletic

And to say that girls as a whole argument is that the modern type of athletic girl faces the loss of her femininity, becomes ungainly and establishes with men a rough

THE MINIMUM WAGE

Naturally the impression of the public is that the fixing of a minimum wage for women operates to the advantage of the woman employee. Actually the result may be different. Some question has arisen as to the constitutionality of a law fixing such minimum, the ground being that it interferes with freedom of contract. The highest authority that has undertaken to decide the matter has been the supreme court of the District of Columbia. The majority of the court declared the law unconstitutional, but Chief Justice Smyth dissented vigorously. He said that congress had a right to establish a minimum wage just as clearly as the right existed to regulate hours and conditions of labor. From the tribunal in question appeal was taken, and the matter now rests with the federal supreme court.

The contention grew out of the case of a girl engaged in running an elevator at $35 a month. The law as passed stipulated that no female thus employed should receive less than $71.50. Thereupon the girl was discharged, and a man hired to take her place at less than $71.50. In this instance the minimum wage, set for the purpose of increasing, for example, the earnings of this girl, deprived her of the power to earn at all.

In this state the minimum wage for working women in certain callings is $16 per week. It does not seem especially generous, but at least it would be unlikely to tempt any man to supercede. Moreover, it may mean to the woman, the difference between earning the sum mentioned and not having a place on a pay

TUTANKHAMEN'S FIRST

It is related that a Chicago woman asserts herself to have been the first wife of the late Pharaoh Tutankhamen. It seems that she recognized part of the furniture recently taken from the royal tomb. Of one chair she is quoted as saying "I had sat in it many times." Continuing, she avers that she was married to this pharaoh when only sixteen, and lived two years after that. Where she has been since is a point concerning which she is reticent. Truly the lady has a remarkable memory. Or possibly a remarkable imagination. To recognize a chair thirty-five centuries or so after having sat in. it may be set down as an extraordinary feat. It might be a good plan for her to demand the article in question, provided no later wife turns up with a counter claim. A lady with a Tutankhamen chair to show to visitors could make all the prized period furniture, regarded now as ancient, take on the rawly modern aspect of day before yesterday.

The possibility that the woman is in error is too nearly a probability to be ignored by kind friends. They ought to have her psychoanalyzed, or sat on by a board of inquisition. People who entertain fantasies sometimes have to be restrained lest they do a mischief with the rawless of the continuing and the recognize of the work of Harvey O'Higgins.

VIEWS OF AN EXPERT

A Texas attorney, who is regarded as an expert on constitutional law, lately has been saying strange things. However extraordinary his degree of expert-sunlight ness, his averments will not be believed. According to him all legislation enacted by congress since 1913 has been illegal. A moment's reflection reveals that much of the legislation of the specified span has been of importance. Within that space amendments have been adopted, a war conducted, billions in bonds sold been adopted, a war conducted, billions in both to the people. Many of the bonds have been retalent:

"She had thought of art as a way to produce "She saw how inadequate land, the expert in question, says that there is a senate pretty pictures quickly. She saw how inadequate but no senators. In his view the gentlemen in the she was for such a big subject and that she lacked but no senators. In his view the gentlemen in the senate, engaged at the time of his remarks in filibuster tactics, were not entitled to pay. Perhaps they were not, but objection a payment would have to be on other grounds; for instance that they were fooling away precious hours.

Holland's allegation is that many legislators neglected to take an oath to support the constitution, as provided by the terms of that document. This cannot be the case. Such a thing as a congressman or senator being seated without having been "sworn in unknown, at least is unknown to others than the Texan. Nor would the omission be tolerated. The process of being sworn in involves the solemn pledge to uphold the constitution.

The state affairs committee of the lower house of the Wisconsin legislature has voted to recommend for passage a bill abolishing the National Guard and the militia of that state. The measure was submitted by Assemblyman J. Polakowski, a socialist, who possibly thinks himself an American.

It is said now that republicans in the senate have not believed since November that the subsidy bill could pass. It would even appear that many of them are glad it did not pass. Perhaps such senators feel that they have been giving the administration a fair

LIQUOR AT THE CAPITOL

A startling account comes from Washington of the use of liquor by members of the senate. One member, desirous of adding his voice to the turmoil of the filibuster, is said to have been in such condition from drink that associates had to restrain him by force from appearing on the floor and making a spectacle of himself. These are serious charges. If the correspondent put them on the wire without positive knowledge as to their truth, he has been guilty of a great wrong. However, in the absence of specific; disproof, there will be a tendency to believe them.

. The sentiment is growing that the patron of the bootlegger morally is as cuipable as the bootlegger.
Judge Bledsoe of the federal court has openly stated that he regards patrons as being in the same class of enemies of the government. A new distaste for the illicit traffic has been aroused by the revelation that the persons engaged in it are desperate criminals; that they do not hesitate at murder, that they purvey poisonous beverages, and that far from being above theft, thieving is a major portion of their business.

Yet as these facts come to light, citizens regarded as respectable, by themselves and others, are engaged JAMES W. It is just as likely that they would transgress the law, as that transgressions should occur among their constituents. But it is a shameful state of

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS By HENRY JAMES

History doubtless perpetrates and preserves errors. While still such errors are apparent, there remains a natural impulse to correct them. Washington generally is credited with having warned the country against entangling alliances. The fact that he never did it. and so far as convincingly recorded, never used the term, is worthy of consideration. Washington, speaking for a new and struggling people, did say: "Tis our true policy to steer clear of permanent alliances with any portion of the foreign world." The time at which he uttered these words, as well as the relative power of this nation, and that of European nations then, have to be taken into consideration. An alliance at that stage of growth, might have meant being the tail to an alien kite. In the year 1923 there is no alien government competent to be the kite to such a tail.

It was Jefferson who used the term "entangling alliances." He did so in his first inaugural address

HENRY JAMES. and in this connection: "Peace, commerce and honest friendship with all nations-entangling alliances with none."

But the modern proponents of a policy of aloofness seem to think that friendly relations and commerce must be abandoned because they would involve "entangling alliances." Not an extremely logical view. Anyhow, it is well for the student of affairs to have his history on

There is a real peril latent in Russia. That the bolshevists are capable of turning loose an effective army to attend to the remaking of Europe does not seem likely, because of the old and established theory that an army must "travel on its belly."

However, if the bolsheviki in any considerable number were to dribble across the line, indubitably they would carry with them the poison of their theories. Also they would spread disease. In the centers of culture maintained by them, fevers and distempers that elsewhere have been mostly conquered, thrive on filth and famine. These maladies might spread in the manner of the plagues of former

BY JOHN DI GRIM

If I had my way about it we would erect a large iron statue to Curley Williams right in the middle of our biggest park. He is one man' who knows how to keep his mouth shut. There may be others. But I can prove it on Curley.

Curley's brother and Curley's brother's wife had been having intermittent battles for months. Curley's brother can get mad quicker than any man I know, but he can get over it quicker, too. His wife finds it hard to forget. She broods for days over a little thing that Curley's brother would swear on a stack of Bibles he had never said. Then she swings it on Curley's brother when he isn't looking and the domestic procession is off for the iron works.

"I looked up," she told Mrs. Pilgrim later, "and saw Curley. He was standing in the aisle of the Pullman car looking at me.

"'Howdedo,' he said. 'What you doing here?'
"'I'm running away,' I told him. 'I'll never see that brother Most of us—me for one—would have taken that as the cue to get helpful. We—me, anyhow—would have sat down beside the angry wife and said a lot of platitudinous goof. We might have quarrelled with her. We might have telegraphed to Curley's brother and then played shoo-fly to see where the runaway wife was headed for. Curley did none of these things. He considered for a moment.

Then he said:

"How are you fixed? Do you need any money?"

Curley's brother's wife said she had all she needed.

"You know me," he said. "I'll never say a word to that brother of mine. But keep in touch with me, sort of. I might come in handy some time. You never can tell."

Months after she had gone back home to Curley's brother she told this to Mrs. Pilgrim. She said that if he had tried to lecture

We think American opinion would welcome an effort by our government to break the intolerable deadlock into which European statesmanship has worked itself. We have an undeniable interest in the pacification and restoration of Europe. France and Belgium, which are taking costly measures against Germany, are our debtors. Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.

(Copyright, 1923, by The Associated Newspapers) It is important, nutritional experts are agreed, that the diet include a great variety of foods. But this does not mean that a great variety should be eaten at every

To have the food too varied at each meal tends to malnutrition, because of the unfavorable effect on the digestion. As Dorothy Lane points out in her recently published "Nutrition and Specific Therapy," a manual of practical helpfulness to those who feel the need of dietary guidance:

"The less variety at one meal, the quicker the digestion and the better for the health. But the greater the variety, the three meals a day considered, the better for the health.

"Serve as few foods as possible at each meal, but serve generously of these foods, and vary each of the three meals a day, and the meals of each day of the week if possible.

Remember always, too, that nutrition does not depend so much upon the amount of food eaten as upon the inclusion of such foods as supply the various needs of the organism.

Amount, of course, is of importance. But numerous people eat an abundance of food, yet are undernourished because of failure to select foods with reference to all the nutritional requirements.

Especially is this likely to be true of persons who eat heartily of meats and starchy foods.

Too often they undereat as regards fruits and green vegetables, with the result that their diet is deficient in vitamins and mineral salts. Then, although they may put on weight and have an appearance of health, they are lacking in endurance, are more or less anaemic, and are under-resistive if attacked by disease.

Further, they are likely to be troubled by constipa-tion, itself a breeder of disease. If only because of their good influence on the organs of elimination, the eating of fruits and green vegetables may be set down as a dietary requirement of the first importance.

For the same reasons—to obtain vitamins and mineral salts and to promote elimination—it is desirable to eat rough breads and cereals, in place of the soft breads and "breakfast foods" so much in favor today. Besides which, when preference is given to soft instead of rough breads and cereals, there may be marked interference with the digestion because of insufficient mastication and too rapid eating. The teeth become more liable to decay, and dental decay itself means increased liability to indigestion, with harmful effects on the system generally.

Finally, for the sake both of digestion and nutrition, uncooked foods should have a conspicuous place in the diet. There are some foods-notably meats-which require to be cooked, not merely for palatability, but to destroy disease-breeding organisms which may be in them. But even in the case of these foods the cooking should not be excessive.

"If protein foods are cooked," again to quote Dorothy Lane, "they should be cooked at as low a temperature and as short a time as possible. The greater the temperature at which they are cooked, the tougher and hornier they become.

"This fact is very clearly seen in the boiling of meat on the stove as compared with cooking it in a fireless cooker, and in the boiling of the white of an egg over the flame as compared with dropping the egg into boiling water and setting the pan on the back of the stove for twenty minutes."

Have You Noticed How the "Ads" --Both Display and Classified--Are Increasing in the Glendale Press?

1st-The Glendale Daily Press has over 2,000 More Circulation than any other Paper Circulating in Glendale.

"THERE'S A REASON"

2nd—The Glendale Daily Press has a Progressive Policy. It is not controlled by any clique or set of men. It speaks straight from the shoulder. Its aim is to serve the best interests of the community without favoring any interests or individuals. In other words,

THE GLENDALE DAILY PRESS IS AN INDEPENDENT PROGRESSIVE NEWSPAPER WITH BACKBONE AND A DEFINITE POLICY

-which is expressed Daily in its editorial columns. It is forging ahead, because the people like it—they know it is watching their interests and will do all in its power to protect the welfare of Glendale.

NO GREEN GOODS HERE!

The Circulation of the Glendale Daily Press is operated upon the Little Merchants Plan, which insures a bona fide paid circulation, that is far ahead of the newspaper which allows its subscriptions to "run as long as you wish and pay when you will."

We believe that our advertising columns offer the best medium for presenting the message of Glendale merchants, because we reach the most people. We have editions for Eagle Rock and Burbank. Three daily newspapers with an advertising rate that is not high enough for one daily paper. Here are the sworn statements required by the government from both Glendale Daily Papers:

THE FACTS IN A NUTSHELL: GLENDALE DAILY PRESS 4,985 SECOND NEWSPAPER 3,336

GLENDALE DAILY PRESS LEAD OVER SECOND NEWSPAPER. 1,649

But, Dear Reader, since the statements were published in October, THE GLENDALE DAILY PRESS has added 715 READERS TO ITS LIST and its circulation now exceeds the sworn statement of the second paper by 2364. Growing some in three months, you say. Well, you're right. Watch us grow during 1923. Watch the advertising columns grow. Glendale has live, progressive merchants and they are using the advertising columns of the Glendale Daily Press to send their message to the people.

LETTER FORMS No. 1—From a Voter to a Mayor of Whom Pictures in Bathing Have Arrived From Palm Beach

Dear Sir:
Newspapers have reached me showing your royal highness darned near naked and about, appared near naked na ently, to go in for a swim at Palm Beach. These pictures make me nore peeved at you than anything that has yet come to my attention.
You are no Apollo when it comes to classic lines, and if the peepul could have seen pictures of you in a bathing suit when you were running for office, you never would have been elected.

No mayor can show his legs the way you do and retain public con-fidence. They are the one thing, or I should say the two things, you should have kept from the public.

I notice that when you were a humble citizen, planning your ca-reer and doing everything you could to make a good impression, you kept your legs very much to yourself: in fact, I doubt if any-body outside of your family ever got a peep at them. When you first ran for mayor you were very careful to wear pants from the day of your nomination until the Election Night returns came in.

You knew very well at that time that a campaign photo of yourself in nothing but a $5.25 woolen swimming outfit would have elected your opponent.

Up to the time of your election you were very careful to see that no photographer got anywhere near you except when you had on long your last inaugural about outstrippiece, extra heavy suit, overcoat, shoes, shirt, and collar. In your first inaugural speech, if I am not mistaken, you promised to do everything possible to please the people, to see that the masses got lair play, and to preserve the digor giving anyoody fair pay by attempt to get a not or clinicus, and then pick up a newspaper and of all the camera men at Palm Beach, you are mistaken, and as Beach developing prickly heat. If for preserving the dignity of your he ever votes for you again I'm a cleaning department.

SONG OF SUMMER DAYS

Sing a song of hollow logs, Chirp of cricket, croak of frogs, Cry of wild bird, hum of bees, Dancing leaves and whisp'ring trees; Legs all bare and dusty toes, Ruddy cheeks and freckled nose, Splash of brook and swish of line, Where the song that's half so fine?

Sing a song of summer days, Leafy nooks and shady ways, Nodding roses, apples red, Clover like a carpet spread; Sing a song of running brooks, Cans of bait and fishing hooks, Dewy hollows, yellow moons, Birds a-pipe with merry tunes.

Sing a song of skies of blue, Eden's garden made anew, Scarlet hedges, leafy lanes, Vine-embowered sills and panes; Stretch of meadows, splashed with dew, Silver clouds with sunlight through, Cry of loon and pipe of wren, Sing and call it home again.

high office you are the first mavor | dodo bird. to try it with bare legs. I'm telling you honestly, there's no dignity in either one of 'em.

I think you said something in fair play, and to preserve the dig-nity of your high office. If you to get the furnace going, argue all think you are pleasing the people morning with a coal dealer in an or giving anybody fair play by attempt to get a hod of clinkers,
